

Torch Lake

I see a birdbath here, but no birds; a bottle of rum, but no drinkers; a piano, but no family.

These days all look the same: voiceless, headless. I am tempted to walk out, but no one would call after me, "Come back or else!"

So I stare at the water-rings and listen to the crickets.

Thy kingdom.